How Does Acupuncture Work?

Acupuncture is a method of encouraging the body to promote natural healing and to improve functioning. It stimulates the body's natural healing abilities by improving an energetic and biochemical balance that results in physical and emotional well-being. This is done by inserting ultra-fine needles, or applying pressure, heat or electrical stimulation to specific acupuncture points which are effective in the treatment of specific disorders.

Benefits

Acupuncture is used to treat a wide variety of medical problems including: pain syndromes, withdrawal syndromes, digestive disorders, respiratory disorders, neurological and muscular disorders; urinary, menstrual and reproductive disorders.

Risks

Acupuncture is relatively painless and to assure safety, we use packaged sterile disposable needles. Side effects from acupuncture are minimal. It is possible to get a small bruise from a needle, or to feel light-headed following treatment. Some soreness may also result from the treatment.

As acupuncturists, we assess your condition and need for treatment based upon the principles of acupuncture and Oriental Medicine. We do not make medical diagnoses, and suggest that you consult your physician regarding the condition for which you are seeking treatment.

Informed Consent Agreement

I, the undersigned, am aware of both the benefits and risks of acupuncture care. I fully understand that there is no implied or stated guarantee or effectiveness of a specific treatment or series of treatments. I have stated all my known medical conditions and will keep the acupuncturist updated on my physical health.

I also do affirm that I have been advised by Tsao-Lin E. Moy, Licensed acupuncturist, to consult a physician regarding the condition or conditions for which I am seeking treatment.

I acknowledge that I have received a copy of Notice of Privacy Practices.
